

Navratri Ghatasthapana Puja

Youtube Video: Powerful Navaratri Sadhana | Durga Puja | Rajarshi Nandy

Ghatasthapana is a process to invoke Mother Goddess into your home during Navratri time. The complete Ghatasthapana puja is done on the first day. Once the Ghatasthapana is completed on the first day, the ghata/kalash is considered as the living presence of Devi. So from the 2nd day onwards, regular puja is done daily on the ghata/kalash, as the swarupa of Ma till the end of Navaratri. On the 10th day, ghata visarjana is done to complete the puja.

Materials Needed

For Ghatasthapana (on Day 1)

1. Wide and open Clay Plate for base (see image above). A wide copper or brass plate can also be used.
2. Clay pot (kalash) — can also use copper or brass pot
3. A clay lid – can also use clay diya, or copper or brass lid
4. Clean soil, ideally from ganges or any river or any clean mud
5. Ideally pancha dhanya seeds (seeds of five different grains) or can use jau (barley) seeds
 - i. Hindu Puja stores normally sell pre-packaged sets of grains to be used
6. Ganga jal
7. Mouli / Kalawa (sacred red thread)
8. Attar or edible camphor
9. Pancha pallabha (five leaves representing the five vayus in the body). If not available, one can use 5 leaves of Mango or ashoka tree
10. Akshata (1 cup of unbroken rice)
11. 5 ratnas (gemstones) – if not available, may use 5 coins
12. Green coconut (used in Eastern India) or unpeeled brown coconut.
13. Red cotton cloth (for wrapping the coconut and optionally)
 - i. If you plan to use a pedestal to place the kalasha setup, you may cover it with red cloth as well
14. Flowers
15. Durva grass (optional)

For Daily puja (On all days)

1. Sandalwood paste
2. Akshata (unbroken rice - see akshata preparation section for more details)
3. Flowers
4. A ghee diya
5. Agarbatti or dhoop
6. Clean water for achamana

Akshata Preparation

Take some unbroken rice, and add kumkum, turmeric and a small amount of ghee and keep aside. This akshata can be used as a substitute whenever some puja material is unavailable such as flowers.

Ghata Preparation

1. Preparing the soil: First take the wide clay pot (the one which would be used to keep the Kalash) to sow the grains. Spread the first layer of the soil into the pot and then spread the grain seeds evenly. Avoid placing grains too much in the center. Now add the second layer of the soil and grains. In the second layer grains should be spread near the periphery of the pot. Now spread the third and final layer of the soil into the pot. If needed add little water to the pot to set the soil.
2. Preparing the ghata: Now take the ghata and tie the mauli/kalawa on the neck 9 times.
3. Preparing the water: Inside the ghata/kalash we place five ratnas or jewels (use 5 coins if not available) representing five indriyas and fill it up with the water up to the neck. Add a little bit of gangajal and Attar to it (can also add cloves or edible camphor to make it fragrant).
4. Setting the leaves: Now, adding the pancha pallabha or five leaves represent the five vayus in the body. Add one mark of sindur on each of the five leaves before putting them in the ghata/kalash. Gently place the 5 leaves at the edge of the Kalash before covering it with a lid. Make sure the base of the leaves do not touch the water or else it will contaminate the water
 - a. On the Kalash draw a swastika with red sindur.
5. Setting the lid: Fill the lid with unbroken rice (not up to the brim). We need enough rice to provide a base for the coconut to be balanced on it. Add Durva grass to the rice if you have it.
6. Preparing the coconut: Put five dots with sindur on the coconut before placing it. Place a red cloth on the coconut to cover as an offering of vastram. Or you may wrap the coconut with red cloth and then use a red thread to tie around it. While putting the thread, chant any mantra of durga.. this is to protect the ghata/kalash.
7. Placing the coconut: Place the coconut on the rice base. The tuft of the coconut must face the individual upasaka. Add coins on the akshat base towards the side.

OPTIONAL: The ghata/kalash can be protected by a red thread around it placed in four corners around the ghata/kalash in a square formation. Each corner can have a small lump of mud on which a stick is placed and then a red thread tied around the four sticks in a way of protecting the ghata/kalash from external forces. In case this is not possible, skip this. Just the thread tied around the coconut will act as a protection.

Make sure the whole setup is stable and can stand on its own. Make sure the ghata/kalash is a bit buried in the soil and the coconut is a bit buried in the rice to provide stability.

Place some flowers on the ghata/kalash.

Now we are ready for pujas on this ghata/kalash.

Ghatasthapana Procedure (First Day Only)

In this section, we describe the puja procedure for invocation of Ma Durga into the ghata/kalash. All the steps mentioned in this section are to be done on the first day of Navratri.

Timing: Ideally Ghatasthapana puja is to be done during ghatasthapana mahuratam (please check drikpanchang for your location). If doing the puja during Ghatasthapana muhurat is not possible for some reason, sthapana can be done during any time on the pratipada tithi (first tithi of Navratri per Hindu calendar) before sunset. Ghatasthapana should NOT be done after sunset.

Puja Process

1. Pick a place for the Ghata/Kalash setup. Do not move the setup from this place for all the days of Navratri. You may draw a small kolam or rangoli at this spot before placing the kalash. You may also use a raised pedestal covered with red cloth to place the ghata/kalash.
2. Light a diya and agarbatti. Akhand Diya (of ghee or oil) is recommended
3. Pray to Ganapati to remove the obstacles of your puja and make your puja successful
4. Mentally imagine and pray that all the devatas along with your pradhana devata (Ma Durga) bless the ghata/kalash and reside there.
5. Then, with each of the following mantras, offer one flower or red sindoor or akshata on the ghata to the following devatas in order. Just one pinch of sindoor or flower is enough for each devata.

ॐ श्री महागणधिपतये नमः	om śrī mahāgaṇādhipataye namaḥ

Daily Puja Process

The following steps are to be done daily for all days of Navratri (including the first day after Ghatasthapana and on the last day before visarjana). This process will take about 40 minutes, not including the japa and dhyanam. The whole process done daily will create a very strong impact when all the deities are invoked and fed daily.

Note: If one does not have flowers, then one can use akshata prepared.

Note: If one is unable to do this process daily due to lack of time, one can do dhyānam of Mā Durgā, Panchopachara Puja of Mā Durgā, Japa, Dhyānam on the shloka and Samarpana for an abridged process.

- Once puja and japa is complete, start by removing the coconut from the top. The coconut can be done visarjan or in any flowing water body, along with the red cloth.
- Take the akshata base and place it in an open space for birds to consume the rice.
- Take the pancha pallava/mango/ashoka leaves, dip it in the kalash water and sprinkle it all over the home as a blessing. You may also partake in a few drops as prasadam.
- The base with the grass can also be done visarjan in flowing water. If water is not available, place it under the base of a tree.
- The ratnas or coins need not be donated. Take the ratnas or coin and some of the aksat on base, tie in a red cloth and keep it at home or in almira or puja space. This is charged and blessed.
- Additionally, any vastra, shringar, money offered during the 9 days should also be used for donation.
